Kindergarten Acclimates Small Children to Life

"At four and a half to five years of age most children enter kindergarten, which is a preparation for formal school work. Since schools are for the purpose of helping children live fuller, teachers in kindergarten concern themselves with first helping children find their place as an integral part of the group." Superintendent of Schools J. H. Hull said recently. "Only a very few children are at ease with other children their own age. This condition begins to be corrected from the first day in school," he added. A sample program of the day would show why:

9:00 Attendance and records; 9:10 music and songs, marching, clapping to music, rhythms, Looby-Looby, etc.; 9:30 free play with toys, blocks, trucks, tea sets,inker toys; 9:55, toys put away; 10:00, lavatory; 10:10, play period outside building (organized and unorganized); 10:30, milk, lunch, rest; 10:50 lavatory; 11:00 clay, crayola, scissors or some form of creative activity; 11:30, story time; 12:00, dismissal.

"On some days the program is not followed per se. Each item does have a very definite reason for being there," Hull said. "Games, for instance, are great teaching devices. In them we learn words, tunes, directions, tolerance, fair play, and the list of learnings is endless. Other things which are not in the daily program, as such, are a part of the weekly program. At least twice a week the teacher sees that each child is given the opportunity of standing (in order for all to see and enjoy) and telling some interesting incident in which they are a part," he added.

According to Fannie Beasley, kindergarten teacher at the Walteria School, kindergarten teachers get credit for helping children overcome timidity, shyness and a deep-seated reserve, when in reality that credit should go to the set-up of the school, she said.

"Credit must be given them, however, for the constant study of each child to determine his strength and weaknesses, and for her untiring efforts to help the child be happy with his adventure in group living. Each child has a right to be happy in that adventure, and it is the duty of the teacher to see that he is happy," she added.

"Our school has been well supplied with equipment and toys; desks and chairs fit the children's size requirements and our room is bright and cheerful. Toys are supplied which will help develop skills, coordination and cooperation. In surroundings like these, an approach to the art of living together in kindergarten bridges the gap from home to formal school work," she concluded.

Map of state's freeway plan shows how rails (heavy lines) and buses (light lines) running on freeways would provide fast travel to all major population centers of metropolitan area, under proposal of Rapid Transit Action Group. Inset lower right shows subway routes downtown on Hill and Spring streets. On existing rail rights-of-way to Glendale, Long Beach, San Pedro and Santa Ana, all crossings would be eliminated and replaced with overpasses or underpasses. State freeway builders agree rails can be incorporated on freeways if plans are started immediately, according to the group.

Here's one place where COMFORT SETS THE STYLE

1. This gadget was the latest thing in headsets when grandmother was a girl. Matter of fact, it was the first headset in general use back in 1880. It weighed more than six pounds. It's a museum piece now, of course. Headset styles changed. They grew lighter, more comfortable, more efficient.

2. This chest-style model came along after many modifications of the old timer. Telephone engineers liked its voice "pick-up." Operators liked its lightness and the freedom of movement it gave. As transmitters became better, central offices became quieter and more pleasant places.

3. Today's newest streamlined set is tops for comfort, say operators who've used it. It weighs under six ounces. It's an example of how we're making equipment more comfortable... to make the company the sort of place that attracts the kind of people who make good service possible.

4. Here's why telephone jobs are good jobs: Pay is good — employees paid while training • Regular raises, overtime and premium pay • Steady work — telephone people can plan ahead • Benefit plan paid for entirely by company — covers sickness, death benefits and pensions • Advancement within company • Paid vacations and holidays.
